

Lead like a conductor

A company that works together like an orchestra – a harmonious performance brought to life in his lectures by conductor and communication coach Peter Stangel. However, a successful performance of such an orchestra is impossible without a competent conductor - in music as in business. Peter Stangel explains how executives can become conductors that harmoniously lead a team in its entirety but never lose sight of the individual.

PARTICIPANT FEEDBACK

"First of all, thank you very much for your great presentation last Friday! I have received only positive feedback, which I would like to pass on to you. Your explanations were really extremely entertaining and completely fulfilled our expectations. You did an excellent job of bridging the gap to our day-to-day work. Hopefully to a next time!"
